Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR(Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy. The movement of Han Chinese into minority regions has been a long-standing pattern in China. However, China's minorities have taken longer to start moving in significant numbers and have now become part of a social change phenomenon, motivated by economic, social, and political factors. This book looks at how current changes in China are affecting the minority population. The case studies focus on how population shifts and the movement of China's minorities impact such issues as education, ethnic identity, the environment, local economy, labor, and regional development. Han-minority interactions within a number of regions are also examined. A discussion of the case study method which develops an integrative framework for causal inference in small-n research. This framework is applied to research design tasks such as case selection and process tracing. The book presents the basics, state-of-the-art and arguments for improving the case study method and empirical small-n research. This volume includes guiding cases of the Supreme People's Court, cases deliberated on by the Judicial Council/Committee of the Supreme People's Court, and cases discussed at the Joint Meetings of Presiding Judges from the various tribunals. This book is divided into four sections, including Cases by Justices, Selected Judicial Opinion(s), "Hot Cases" and "Typical Cases", which will introduce readers to Chinese legal processes, legal methodologies and ideology in an intuitive, clear, and accurate manner. This volume presents cases selected by the trial departments of the Supreme People's Court of China from their concluded cases. In order to give full weight to the legal value and social functions of cases from the Supreme People's Court, and to achieve the goal of "serving the trial practices, serving economic and social development, serving legal education and legal scholarship, serving international legal exchanges among Chinese and foreign legal communities and serving the rule of law in China", the China Institute of Applied Jurisprudence, with the approval of the Supreme People's Court, opted to publish "Selected Cases from the Supreme People's Court of the People's Republic of China" in both Chinese and English, for domestic and overseas distribution. Using Mixed Methods offers an innovative approach to social and educational research. The author sets out the case for research from an holistic perspective, integrating different methods, different data and overall research strategies. This book shows how to use an integrated methodology that meets the needs of the postgraduate researcher who wants to challenge the traditional paradigmatic view of research. The author explores: - The FraIM and its application to social and educational research - The contexts of research - Different methods of data collection - Types of data and their natural integration within the research process This book is for final year undergraduate and postgraduate students on social science and education courses. Many of these excellent cases were prepared especially for this volume and represent path-breaking treatments of such topics as health care marketing auditing, psychographic analysis, pricing in alternative delivery systems, promoting a public health service, and marketing planning for private colleges. Special offer from the editors: Buy Cases and Select Readings in Health Care Marketing and the authors will guarantee you a free written response--up to three pages--to your first inquiry about marketing your own organization! Excerpt from Select Cases: And Other Authorities on the Law of Conveyances and Related Subjects This collection is designed for a course of thirty-two lectures for second-year law students who have already completed Professor Edward H. Warren's Cases on Property or its equivalent. It is not expected that all the material here printed can be covered. A judicious selection must be made. The generosity of Professor John C. Gray has made available the second, third, and sixth volumes of his case-books on Property; and the editor has made such free use of this material that the majority of cases here appearing have been taken from those collections, and the scheme of the third volume has been followed to a considerable extent. Several of Mr. Gray's longer notes have been reprinted here. The source of such notes is duly indicated. The editor has also had placed at his disposal the Ms. notes and abstracts which Mr. Gray carried with him to the class room. It is difficult to estimate, much more to point out, to what extent the editor has been assisted by these memoranda. It has been his attempt to follow Mr. Gray's work whenever possible rather than to try to find another arrangement of equal value. His debt, therefore, is a very large one. The editor has also had the benefit of the advice of many of the teachers of Property throughout the country, with whom he has corresponded or conversed before collecting the authorities. This book is the first anthology compiled in English by the CEIBS Case Center to promote China-focused cases worldwide. Included are ten of twenty six award-winning cases from the Global Contest for the Best China-Focused Cases during 2015 to 2017: these works exemplify the quality of effective business cases and share stories of China to the world. Each of the ten cases has a defining feature. Some cases, with a focus on user demand, analyze how companies build their core competence (e.g., Haidilao Hot-Pot and OnePlus Mobile Phone), while others present an array of business innovations in the era of new retail, e-commerce, and the sharing economy (e.g., SF Express, Jinhubao, ofo, FamilyMart, and Handu Apparel). Some describe Chinese companies' operations in the overseas market (e.g., Huawei and TECNO), and others depict how foreign companies adapt to the Chinese market in a unique way (e.g., Starbucks). These cases were drawn from Chinese and overseas business schools. The book helps bridge the gap between the world management community's interest in China and the limited availability of China-focused management cases. We hope this collection of select cases will prove valuable and informative for our readers. How should case studies be selected? Is case study methodology fundamentally different to that of other methods? What, in fact, is a case? Case Study Research: What, Why and How? is an authoritative and nuanced exploration of the many faces of case-based research methods. As well as the what, how and why, the author also examines the when and which - always with an eye on practical applications to the design, collection, analysis and presentation of the research. Case study methodology can prove a confusing and fragmented topic. In bringing diverse notions of case study research together in one volume and sensitising the reader to the many varying definitions and perceptions of 'case study', this book equips researchers at all levels with the knowledge to make an informed choice of research strategy. Evaluating the strength of epidemiologic evidence is inherently challenging, both for those new to the field and for experienced researchers. This book offers a strategy for assessing epidemiologic research findings, explicitly describing the goals and products of research. E-Commerce in Asia has been receiving considerable attention as a result of the proliferation of Internet connectivity and technologies in the region. In response to this trend, a series of studies to investigate the various economic, social, methodological, and security issues related to this emerging business paradigm. Excerpt from Select Cases and Other Authorities on the Law of Private Corporations This book is intended as a successor to the Cases on Private Corporations, published by Judge Jeremiah Smith, the first edition of which appeared in 1897, and the second in 1902. With the abounding generosity characteristic of him, Judge Smith has allowed me to make any use I pleased of the matter contained in his book, and a large number of the cases in his book are here reproduced. It is a pleasure to make public acknowledgment of my indebtedness to him. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Excerpt from Principles of the Law of Wills: With Selected Cases It would be hardly justifiable to express a conviction that this book will prove as useful to practising lawyers as to the student. But it is believed that it will prove useful even to them as a compact and careful review and summary of the important principles and doctrines in its field, and as a convenient means of reference to the best and most telling authorities. The very wealth of material in the large treatises, - some of which are beyond all need of praise for their great worth and practical value, - often renders it difficult to determine which of the army of 'cases cited are the best for reading or reference. Here the citations are, so to speak, few, but they are carefully chosen and important. For lawyers who have not convenient access to large libraries, the selected cases also constitute a reservoir of valuable original authorities. This book introduces 'pathway analysis', a method to combine large and small-N research techniques and to aid understanding of causal mechanisms. We still lack practical answers to one of the most basic questions in empirical research: How should researchers interpret meanings? The contributors take seriously the goals of both post-modernist and positivist researchers, as they offer detailed guidance on how to apply specific tools of analysis and how to circumvent their inherent limitations.
